

Morning

Oregonian.

PORTLAND, OREGON.

PORTLAND,

OREGON. WEDNESDAY, JULY 25, 1888.

PECTALING CO.
Nos. 1, 3, 5 and 7 North First St., Portland, Or.
Sole Agents and Wholesale Liquor Dealers.

Cutter whiskies
See Champagne, Val Blatz Weiner Beer,
White Rock Mineral Water.

3. J. & J. & J.
BEDROOM & LIVING ROOMS.

Bedroom and Parlor Suites,
Folding Beds (all styles),
School Desks, Odd Chairs,
Cheffoniers, Side Boards,
Best Assortment in Portland.

167 and 169 Front Street.

G. SHINDLER & CO., Portland, Or.

AGENCY THE

A. P. L. & S. S.

Hercules, Champion and Black Blasting

Powders, Caps and Fuse.

ARTHUR, Agent, 25 Pine St., Portland.

SK FOR WEINHARD'S

New Export Bottled Beer,

X C E S S

Especially brewed for this purpose, and superior to all on the Pacific Coast.

G. KOHN & BRO.,

Sale Grocers and Commission Merchants,

108 and 110 Front St., Portland, Oregon.

WIGGLES for sale in lots to suit.

A. J. SCHWAYER & CO.,

Wine and Spirit Merchants,

Front St., Portland, Oregon.

is Noble Bourbon! Old Hickory Bourbon!

Manhattan Club Bourbon!

JAMES DRUMMOND, from New York.

C. J. HOGAN,

Successor to J. B. CONGLE.

Manufacturer and Importer of—

Harness, Saddlery Hardware, Collars, Whips, Horse Clothing,

Leather, Carriage Trimmings, Etc.

110 FRONT ST., PORTLAND, OR.

Travelers of Experience Always Carry TARRANT'S SELTZER APERTIENT

THE EVIL EFFECTS OF IRREGULAR MEALS OR BAD COOKING NEUTRALIZED BY TARRANT'S SELTZER APERTIENT

May 9, 1886 612 Clay St., Bellingham, W. Va.

Cutter, the great skin care and Cuticura soap prepared from it externally aid Cuticura soap in the new blood purifier internally it is a care for every form of skin and blood disease from phthisis to scrofula.

Gold everywhere. Price Cuticura 50c. Soap, 25c. Resolvent, 50c. Prepared by the POTTER DRUG & CHEMICAL COMPANY, Bellingham, Wash.

How to cure Skin Diseases pages 50 illustrations and 100 testimonies.

BABY'S Skin and Scalp Preserved and Basted by Cuticura Medicated Soap.

EVERY MUSCLE ACHE, Skin Aches, Dull Pains, Strains and Weakness relieved in one minute by the Cuticura Anti Pain Plaster.

The SENATE AND THE TARIFF

A Belief Prevails That the Republicans Will Not Adopt a Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—There was a full meeting of the senate finance committee this morning, and an hour was devoted to an important discussion of the tariff bill, and in regard to the tariff. Nothing was determined, but at the time of adjournment there was an understanding that the republican majority of the committee would get together and see if the amendment could be introduced to a measure to be submitted as a substitute for the Mills bill. If successful in this a measure is likely to be had before a republican can be sure of his party's support. Any conflict with which may be developed there it will be had before the democrats of the finance committee and by them before a democratic can be sure for consideration for a time. The Mills bill is the one which has elements of uncertainty as to the kind of measure if any which may be submitted or the length of time it will be had. It is expected that the present will be done pretty clearly by the time of the next session.

The republicans in the committee remained in conference nearly an hour after the adjournment, and it was not until the afternoon that there were frequent private conferences with other republican senators and with republican members of the house. As a result the opinion gained headway that the Mills bill would be introduced during the recess. Should the republican insist on this course a final adjournment of congress may be expected within three weeks.

After a short debate on the Oklahoma bill the committee rose, and the house took a recess until evening.

At the evening session the house passed the following bill: For the sale of the Fort Wallace reservation to the state. The bill provides for the sale of the land in the public park and for protection of purchases of railroad land in the so-called triangle southwest of D. W. Y.

Patents Issued.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Patents have been granted as follows: Oregon: Alexander McNeil and Island Island, grant 1,112; H. H. Nelson and R. H. Harper, grant 1,113; James Murray, grant 1,114; and C. W. Fisher of Atlanta, who represented the independent wing.

Trees and Stumps Walk into Court.

CINCINNATI, July 24.—Lawyers and others were astonished this afternoon by the sudden and unexpected appearance in the city of a tree and a stump. They went to court and the two bodies at the sum of $10,000 each for their appearance. The two judgments found. These contain two indictments one charging imbrication and the other grafting.

Coming to Oregon.

Element of Wealthy English Manufacturer's Daughter.

NEW YORK, July 24.—A couple who were married in England and then came to America for the arrival of the arrival of the bride from England. One was Alice St. John, a very pretty girl of 18 who dropped from Birmingham England with Rudolph Wunsch a big, broad-shouldered man. When asked her name at the landing the girl replied in a tremulous voice. Upon the officials deciding to hold the pair the girl broke into tears and finally confessed she was not married, as she had declared. She said she was the daughter of a wealthy man named Wunsch, and Wunsch, although he has a wife and three children, but the wife she alleges loved him no longer. Wunsch was arrested, but when it was shown that the girl was 18 ago he was discharged. Wunsch expected to get a divorce here and marry the girl.

A NOVEL CORPORATION.

Its Purpose Is to Guarantee Bank Deposits Against Loss.

NEW YORK, July 24.—A new corporation, the Depositor's Guarantee Company of America has just issued its prospectus announcing a new novel and original enterprise and line of business. It is designed to guarantee and indemnify depositors in national and state banks against loss. It is a guaranteed with a capital of $4,000,000. The company will have 100,000 shares of stock. The president of the company is President Norman Green of the Western Union Telegraph Company. President L. L. M. of the Lincoln National bank, President of the New York and the president of the New York and others. One or two prominent men have signed their intention to become stockholders and having their deposits guaranteed by this company. The stock will be $500 a share, making a yearly income of $200,000 over the estimated expenses. No bank will be guaranteed that is not a stockholder.

INDIANS REFUSE TO SIGN.

Angry Opposition at Standing Rock to the Proposed Treaty.

SAFAT, July 24.—A special from Standing Rock says that the excitement on the reservation is intense to-day. A few of the Indians seem inclined to hear what the members of the Standing Rock council say, but most of the chiefs even refuse to take circumscribed in Sioux explaining the terms of the treaty. Chief Gull who took a leading part in yesterday's Indian council, said in English he was not a man. His chief, except running Antelope, can be found who will admit that he can be induced to sign. The Indians are holding another night meeting. Most of them are said to be in full support. Bill will be expected to-morrow. A strong effort will be made to induce him to sign. The half breed element is active. The half breed, Chief Mad John, John Gull, Bill Head and Gull have been selected by the Indians to speak for them. The argument of the Indians is that the white men have already more land than they we.

ELAINE INTERVIEWED.

He Has Not Yet Accepted any Western Invitations, but Probably Will.

NEW YORK, July 24.—A cablegram from England quotes Blaine who is to sail next Wednesday as saying that he has not made any special plans for speaking during the campaign. He will go to New York after his New York reception. He has made arrangements to speak in New York and Connecticut but has not yet accepted any other invitations. He is now engaged in a tour of the country. He has not been to England or Scotland during the last two months, that he intended to keep up his outdoor life after returning home. He believes that he will be elected, and upon the issues directly made for him by his Cleveland client.

SPORTING NOTES.

Monmouth Park, July 24.—Three-fourths mile Little Match won in 1:15. Auriela second, Geraldine third.

Three fourths mile—Gentleman's winner in 1:16%, Auriela and Geraldine second, Starters, Linda, Kay and Burlington Prince Royal won.

One and one-eighth miles—Race won in 1:52. Noble Bourbon second, Bill Head third, 1:53. Bill Head, 1:54—winner won in 1:53. Long Knight second, St. Valentine third.

Wrestleford won, Bassino second, Willie Palmer third time 8:14%.

Racing at Detroit.

The last meeting of the week the latest either by argument in interest or by rule unless there is some oblique public notice of the witness.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT Enough to Pay the Necessary Expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

Washington, July 24.—The afternoon session was adjourned to the next day in the interest of the witness.

NOT enough to pay the necessary expenses.

OFFICE OF THE WITNESS.

</div

NORTHWESTERN NEWS.

Two Men Murdered by a Former Schoolmate.

A CHILD'S PLUNGE INTO INFAMY

Capture of a Condemned Murderer—The Oregon River Upland—Notes from Various Towns of the Northwest.

ORLANDO, W. T., July 24.—Sunday evening, about 6 P.M., Peter Morris and wife and Carroll Morris called on James Bley near Kahlburg, for a visit. On arriving at Bley's house the Morris boys, found that Bley had a son, and that his son was a boy who was to be married.

Carroll Morris agreed to pay the $25 damage and $5 for keeping. Morris agreed to pay the $25 damage, but refused to pay the other $5, whereupon a quarrel ensued. Shorter, the son of the deceased, commented Bley was in his house and procured a caliper.

FROM SALEM

Gov. Pennoyer Commutes the Sentence of Two Convicts—Missing Notes

Carroll Morris, a former schoolmate of the deceased, was on a visit to the house, and, following the Morris boys, overtook them a short distance from his house and securing the horse returned.

The reason assigned in Morris's case is former good reputation and unimpeachable standing as a son of a good man, and the reason assigned in the case of the deceased is that he is the son of a former schoolmate of the deceased.

Henry Bley was returned from Oregon, having been accompanied by his brother, Judge Morris, of the Oregon court of California.

Opposed to the Mills Bill

Not a manufacturer paper in Oregon, and not a manufacturer free trade man, has ever been so bold as to say that the manufacturers of the world would be beaten with their backs against such manufacturers as we are.

The statement of free trade is held out to the manufacturers as a bribe for his support of the democratic party. It is a bribe of power and wealth, when it is not that the manufacturer has intelligence to see that he could not have the double-blessing of free trade in wool and protection for women goods. He knows that he joins to-day in forcing the domestic wool-grower to submit to the competition of the world's cheap labor, and that he joins to-day to the competition of the world's cheap goods.

He is a manufacturer, and he is a manufacturer, but he is not a manufacturer, for wealth or for power.

Some days ago a letter from President Chairman of the National Association of Woollen Manufacturers was read in the house of representatives. In this letter Mr. Williamson stated that the manufacturers of woollen goods in the Eastern and Middle states, who exceptions which he could count as the leaders of one-hand, were composed of 100,000 men. They are not below, he said, the manufacturing industry of the United States, and he added, "Our men are the best that free trade has ever produced by free trade."

It is the best that free trade has ever produced, Mr. George Merritt of Indiana, who has been a manufacturer of woollen goods more than thirty years. In a statement published in the Journal of that city he says: "The reveal of the duty on wool would undoubtedly kill the wool-growing industry in this country. Some states would continue to expand, but not so much as to be a secondary consideration and the wool-growing industry would not be able to compete with foreign goods. The wool-growing industry in the United States is not produced in the United States, so as to compete with the English and South American, and the American wool-grower of the world is relatively small and to the manufacturing industry of this country, as for the rest on manufacturing, I think it would be equally disastrous. Although the Mills bill does not remove the duty on woollen goods, that would follow as an inevitable result. Manufacturers regard the rest of the duty as a tax on the wool-growing industry in the United States, and the protection, and surety of the rest of the duty on woollen goods is the best guarantee of the future of this country."

Mr. L. C. Johnson, of the firm of Johnson & Company of Indianapolis, woollen manufacturers, say: "The repeal of the duty on foreign wool would kill the wool-growing industry in the United States. Farmers would cultivate sheep for wool, and the wool-business as such, would be dead. Besides, if we get foreign wool free of duty, we are then only on the same footing with foreign manufacturers, and to compete with them we would have to reduce the duty on our wool to 10 per cent, or 20 to 30 per cent, higher wages, and then we would foreign wool free of duty, we could not compete with foreign manufacturers without reducing wages. Another thing, if we had to pay foreign wool there would be about $50,000,000 going out of this country and into the pockets of the foreign wool-growers which now goes to American farmers. If the Mills bill becomes a law," concluded Mr. Johnson, "we shall not run during the coming winter. We should simply close our mill and wait till the snow storm, here, over. In my opinion the West would do the same."

From these, and similar statements occurring in the press, it seems pretty clear that the manufacturers will not be such advocates as to liberalize this free wool bill and throw their influence to the democratic party. It is the eastern end of the democratic party combination will fail, and the bold South will be left alone to hug the democratic party to its bosom.

CLEVELAND AND PEEL.

When Sir Robert Peel was forced by Cobden & Co. and the Irish Tamers to declare himself for free trade he did not do so.

Cleveland did protest that he was a revenue reformer, not a free trader. Peel was a high-minded, honest, straightforward man, who did not compromise to save his skin, and who had a few sounding sentences about revenue reform, but Cleveland is a dishonest scoundrel who, with free trade in his heart, has a modish little side in the seductive aspects of the "star-eyed" strain of revenue reform.

Peel came into office in 1841, when the British tariff rate on the average was 31 per cent. He was pledged to uphold the principle of protection for home-grown grain; but in 1846 he repealed the corn laws, which imposed a duty on the importation of foreign grain, but amounted to protection. Peel, however, did not do so, but he did not do so, and announced him, as he did not do so, to the principle of free trade, but Cleveland wants the game not the name or shame that goes with it.

The situation to-day is very similar to that of 1846 in England, only Peel acted like an honest, brave statesman, who lifted his flag lettered "free trade" and said that he might march very slow, but he would march on to the principle of free trade.

But Cleveland wants the game not the name or shame that goes with it. The situation to-day is very similar to that of 1846 in England, only Peel acted like an honest, brave statesman, who lifted his flag lettered "free trade" and said that he might march very slow, but he would march on to the principle of free trade.

He is a manufacturer, and he is a manufacturer, but he is not a manufacturer, for wealth or for power.

ON THE RUN IN MICHIGAN.

Washington R. Burd, Democratic and greenback fusion candidate for governor of Michigan, announces his opposition to the leading features of the Mills bill and will include it in his own platform.

He declares his opposition to free wool, free salt and free lumber, and says he will stand up for the interests of his state, regardless of the course pursued by the administration at Washington or by his party's representatives in Congress. Mr. Burd will probably be "swamped" in this effort. His course, however, shows that he sees the necessities of taking a stand for protection of the industry of Michigan. He is a good man, and the young of Michigan add to the reputation of the party for its support of the Mills bill.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published a little volume entitled "An Irish Knight of the Nineteenth Century," a biographical sketch of the life of Robert Emmet. It is an impassioned piece, a special pleading for the young man, who, in his opinion, had the right to subvert his country.

Mr. Burd, who has not had the time to read it, has not yet made up his mind.

The protective system is an unmitigated curse," says the "New York World." Then comes the catch: "Why do the dictators don't go in for it?"

Mr. Burd, the Waterloo veteran, is a smallish man, with bright eyes. He wears a black velvet skull cap. He is now 50 years old, and is the sole survivor of the forty-four officers who sat down to the Duke of Wellington's last Waterloo dinner. He gives a reception every year on the anniversary of the battle.

Miss Winona Davis, the "daughter of the Confederacy," has just published

GOLDEN RULE BAZAR

CAMPAIGN BADGES.

GREAT VARIETY.
Republican and Democratic - Whiskers & Robins.

PROTESTANT AND FLAG BADGES.

In Silk, Cotton and Linen.
Wholesale and Retail.

BANDANA AND OLD ROMAN HANDKERCHIEFS.

Silk, Cotton and Linen.
Wholesale and Retail.

GREAT VARIETY OF CAMPAIGN EMBLEMS.

GOLDEN RULE BAZAR.

BATHING TIGHTS.

CAMPING TIN WARE.

TENT - FOLDING CHAIRS.

HAMMOCKS.

TIN BUCKETS &amp; SHOVELS.

WAGONS AND WHEELBARROWS.

SEASIDE BABY CARRIAGES.

CROQUET AND LAWN TENNIS.

GOLDEN RULE BAZAR.

160-161 FIRST STREET.

Between Yamhill and Taylor Sts.

SALE OF ## EELS!

One Price 50

MONDAY, JULY 23d

We will inaugurate our Annual Remnant Sale of piece goods, including all grades of Dress Goods, Satins, Silks, Velvets, White Goods, Cheviots, Chambrays, etc. Our Remnant Sales are sufficiently known to the public and do not need any further notice from us.

COMMENCING WEDNESDAY, JULY 25th.

Great Sale of Emroiderries

WEEKLY SALES.

As a further attraction for this week, we propose to offer our entire stock of Millinery at cost, including trimmed and untrimmed goods. This is no half-price sale, but a genuine clearance sale for the season of all goods in the Millinery line.

Our $3, $3.50 and $4 Trimmed Hats at $2.00

Our $2, $2.50 &amp; $2.75 Trimmed Hats at $1.50

All these sales close Saturday Night, July 28.

HATERS &amp; CLOTHES STORE,

200, 202, 204, 206 First Street

Will commence

TO-DAY

Sell Hats Away Down.

BEING DESIROUS OF ## REDUCING STOCK.

WE WILL OFFER

Diamonds Clocks

Watches Bronzes

Silverware Optical Goods

Reasonable rates Country orders solicited.

THIS WEEK!

A. B. STEINBACH &amp; CO.

Corner First and Morrison Sts.

RESORTS.

STOUT'S HOTEL.

J. L. STOUT, Prop. PHILIP STOUT, Manager.

SEA VIEW, NEAR HWACO, W.T.

NOW OPEN FOR 1888 - NEWLY REFINED.

On the ocean beach, two miles from steamship dock.

Price, Cabin, $10.00 per day, and board.

Beds, $2 per day and board.

WATER, $1.00 per day.

TO SEASIDE TOURISTS.

Passengers arriving at Astoria by the morning or other boats can get a room.

Breakfasts, Lunches or Dinners

- AT THE ## ACCIDENT HOTEL.

MILLER &amp; WRIGHT.

101 First.

THE SEASIDE HOUSE.

CLATSOP BEACH.

This Hotel is the largest on the coast.

Accommodations good. The coach meets

all boats at the landing.

G. K. GRIMES.

GRIMES HOUSE,

CLATSOP BEACH.

This Hotel is the largest on the coast.

Accommodations good. The coach meets

all boats at the landing.

COCKLE'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS.

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY.

FOR LIVER, RUE IN DIGESTION, ETC.

A Remedy for Bilious Complaints.

Manufactured by G. K. GRIMES, San Francisco, Cal.

JOHN BARRETT,

DEALER IN

Plumber's Gas and Steam Filters' Supplies.

MANTLES, GRATES, ETC.

HAS REMOVED

TO NO. 99 FIRST STREET

SAM'L H. TAYLOR,

GENERAL AGENT.

Thompson Houston Electric Co.

Systems of Air and Steam Heat.

Mills, Factories, Warehouses, etc.

Newspaper ARCHIVE®

IN AND ABOUT PORTLAND.

BY THE OREGONIAN.

A second edition of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

edition

of

the

new

